To assume the task of (1) _____ (NARRATE) the history of an overtly oppressed race is a daunting responsibility. Nonetheless, Edward Kennedy Ellington (2) _____ (TAKE) this task in composing the multi-movement jazz suite Black, Brown, and Beige. Originally (3) _____ (DEBUT) at Carnegie Hall on January 23rd, 1943, the composition received mixed, if not critical (4) _____ (FEED). Much of that criticism (5) _____ (WEIGHT) on the "pretentiousness" such a narrative composition implies. As Robert Crowley says, however, it would be shameful to dismiss the whole thing as pretentious: "Anything (6) _____ (AUDACITY) and ambitious has a tincture of pretentiousness in it. Any less than arrogant composer must sometimes feel, 'Who the hell am I to set forth this mess of little-learning, guess-work and hope, and expect hundreds of people to listen to it?'" Indeed, hundreds of people did listen to it that debut night in Carnegie Hall. After a tepid reaction to the work, Ellington revised much of the suite and recorded a (7) _____ (SHORT) version, breaking it into a "series of excerpts of less than half the (8) _____ (LONG) of the original..." Despite these considerable (9) _____ (AMEND) to the work, it remains a pivotal creation in the culture and history of African-American music. Within this suite, components of the early spiritual music (10)_____ (SOUND), from slavery to swing. In Black, Brown, and Beige, Duke Ellington musically narrates the struggles, triumphs, and emergence of individual identity in early African-American culture. Specifically, "Work Song," "Light," and "Come Sunday" exemplify Ellington's narration of the African-American history.

În fiecare după-amiază repeta scena mecanic, fără să încerce să schimbe ceva. Ca și cum, dacă unul dintre ei ar fi scos un singur cuvânt sau dacă el s-ar fi oprit fie și pentru o clipă în dreptul ferestrei ei, toată magia inexplicabilă care-l făcea să tresară s-ar fi năruit deodată. Și îi era foarte teamă de asta. Venea de fiecare dată la aceeași oră fixă, fără să întârzie nici măcar un minut. Nu încetinea pașii când se apropia de ea, nu o privea mai mult decât ținea zâmbetul lor simplu și nu îndrăznește niciun alt gest față de rutina lor obișnuită.

(Andrei Ruse, Femeia care se juca cu timpul)

SUBIECTUL B- INTEGRATED SKILLS (60 points)

Read the text below and do the tasks that follow.

One of my earliest memories starts with me sobbing. I refused to be soothed no matter what Mom and Dad tried. Dad gave up and left the bedroom, but Mom took me into the kitchen and sat me down at the breakfast table. "Look, look," she said, as she pulled a sheet of wrapping paper from on top of the fridge. For years, Mom carefully sliced open the wrappings around Christmas gifts and saved them on top of the fridge in a thick stack. She set the paper down, plain side facing up, and began to fold it. I stopped crying and watched her, curious. She turned the paper over and folded it again. She pleated, rolled, and twisted until the paper disappeared between her cupped hands. Then she lifted the folded-up paper packet to her mouth and blew into it, like a balloon. She said "Look, a tiger". She put her hands down on the table and let go. A little paper tiger stood on the table.

I reached out to Mom's creation. Its tail twitched, and it pounced playfully at my finger. line 11 "Rawrr," it growled, the sound somewhere between a cat and rustling newspapers. I laughed, startled, and stroked its back with my index finger. The paper tiger vibrated under my finger, purring.

My mother's mother taught her how to make paper animals and give them life. This was practical magic in the life of the village where she was born. They made paper birds to chase grasshoppers away from the fields, and paper tigers to keep away the mice. For Chinese New Year they made red paper dragons to scare away all the bad memories of the past year.

At my request, Mom also made a goat, a deer, and a water buffalo out of wrapping paper. They would run around the living room while the tiger chased after them, growling. When he caught them, he would press down until the air went out of them and they became just flat pieces of paper. I would then have to blow into them to re-inflate them so they could run around some more. Sometimes, the paper animals got into trouble. The tiger liked to pounce at sparrows when he and I played in the backyard. But one time, a cornered bird struck back in desperation and tore his ear. He whimpered and winced as I held him and Mom patched his ear together with tape. He avoided birds after that.
